Public outcry has sent Calgary police back to the drawing board in their quest to develop a multimillion-dollar training facili-

Calgary police had targeted a plot of land near Chestermere. However, Rocky View County council unanimously voted that proposal down during a meeting last week. Reeve Rolly Ashdown cited dissent from residents in the area, which came in the form of a 64-signature petition as well as numerous public appeals, as the reason for council's rejection.

"Our general attitude in Rocky View is to protect agriculture whenever we can," he said. "It has nothing to do with the Calgary police." Deputy Chief Roger Chaffin said the centre would have answered numerous training needs currently being faced by the service. Current facilities are separate and many are deteriorating, he said. Police also recently closed their only outdoor shooting range in southeast Calgary to make room for environmental management needs. "This was a good op-portunity for a single site for all of it," Chaffin said, estimating the proposal for the Chestermere-area site had been in the works for a year. "It's not like we just drive around and look for for-sale signs

Retired farmer Jim Mabley, 85, is certainly happy the centre was rejected. His family has occupied the land across the road from the proposed site since 1925, and says the training facility would have ruined good land for growing crops. "There's no way that a facility like that should be taking farmland out of production," he said.

Visiting swimsuit models could help Banff make a splash in the tourism market.

That was the feeling yesterday as the latest edition of the popular Sports Illustrated swimsuit issue, which features three athlete-models posing in various areas in and around the mountain destination, was unveiled.

Don't let couch potato culture take root in kids

• Cut TV and computer use to two hours a day, new guidelines suggest • Greatest risk is chronic disease

New sedentary behaviour guidelines take aim at the couch potato culture of many Canadian young-sters by suggesting limits for sitting idle and spending time glued to TV, computer and game screens.

The Canadian Society for Exercise Physiology's guidelines, unveiled yesterday, focus on minimizbehaviours that involve little physical movement and the low expenditure of energy.

The group recommends children and youth aged five to 17 limit recreational screen time - including watching TV, playing passive video games and using the computer - to no more than two hours daily. The guidelines suggest youngsters scale back on time spent indoors and sitting for extended periods. They also recommend limiting use of sedentary transport, like travelling by bus or car.

Children and youth are advised to get at least 60 minutes of moderate to vigorous physical activity daily.

Today, only seven per cent of youngsters are active enough to meet those targets.

Instead, kids ages five to 11 are encouraged to walk to school with a group of neighbourhood kids; for youth 12 to 17, it's recommended they walk or bike with friends. Instead of teens texting their friends, it's suggested they visit with them instead.

CSEP says kids are presently spending an average 8.6 hours a day — 62 per cent of their waking hours — being sedentary. Chronic disease risk is elevated if individuals are highly sedentary, so even an hour of recommended activity for kids isn't full protection if they're sedentary for the remainder of the day, the canadian press

The court will consist of three female judges. Two people appear as victims in this trial: Moroccan dancer Karima

Globalive not 'foreign': Ottawa

• If its managers and board are Canadian, wireless company is Canadian: Clement • Vows to appeal ruling

Ottawa will appeal a court ruling that found wireless provider Globalive - operator of the Wind Mobile cellphone service - doesn't ĥave enough Canadian ownership to operate in this country.

"We are convinced that Globalive is a Canadian company and meets the Canadian ownership and control requirements under the Telecommunica-tions Act," Industry Minister Tony Clement said yesterday. "Globalive should therefore be able to continue to offer service in the wireless telecommunications market."

"We are convinced that Globalive meets Canadian ownership requirements."

Clement said the government's motive is to defend consumer choice and boost competition. Ensuring Globalive's survival is part of that strategy.

A Federal Court ruling this month quashed Clement's 2009 decision to overrule a Canadian Radio-television Telecommunications Commission assessment that Globalive, financed largely by Egypt-based Orascom, wasn't Canadian-owned and controlled.

Clement said Ottawa has not rejected the idea of opening the entire industry to foreign investment, but added the government is not ready to outline its plans. THE CANADIAN PRESS amed after the founder of IBM, Watson is a super computer worthy of the title. Built from 10 racks of IBM servers, it has 15 terabytes of RAM and the processing power of 2,800 of the most powerful computers on the market.

Watson is a humdinger, all right. But even with all that fire-power, so far it has only managed to tie a human contest-ant on Jeopardy! As I write, there are two nights left to go, and Watson better get game or it's going to lose to some guy named Brad.

Watson is a quantum leap ahead of the most famous IBM computer to date, Deep Blue, which humbled world chess champ Garry Kasparov in 1997.

But as impressive as Watson is, it still has trouble with trivia. During a dry run before its appearance on Jeopardy! it answered the question: "What do grasshoppers eat?" with "Kosher!" causing its programmers to choke on their pastrami sandwich and write another million lines of codes to correct the problem.

Is it just me, or is this a massive amount of effort to create nothing more than a giant nerd? A nerd that can answer most trivia questions in three to five seconds, but a nerd nonethelife, maybe they could create a machine that does something useful: Pick stocks that only increase in value; remember where I left my car keys; or find a decent restaurant in Nanaimo.

Instead, it's really good at identifying the names of Beatles songs from their lyrics. Big deal. I already know how to do that.

According to some experts, Watson's ability to answer questions will revolutionize call centres. Great. Instead of getting some bozo from South Carolina, we'll get some bozo from the cloud answering the question: "What's this $350 charge on my cellphone bill?" with "Would you like to speak to my supervisor?" and then hang up.

Our desire to create a machine that's smarter than we are is kind of pathetic. After all, we're limited by that fundamental law of computing: Garbage in, garbage out. We can only create a reflection of ourselves. Which explains why Watson is so easily confused. It's one of us.

Meanwhile, Watson and Brad conclude their epic battle tonight.

May the best nerd win.

'Climate chaos' warning

Worth mentioning

Global warming is a looming threat to stability and national security around the world, and militaries should spend some of their ever-expanding budgets on reducing carbon emissions to avoid "climate chaos," the UN's top climate official said yesterday.

Christiana Figueres, head of the UN climate secretariat, warned of the destabilizing effects created by growing water stress, declining crop yields and damage from extreme storms in some of the world's poorest countries, which could set off mass international migration and regional conflicts.

Figueres said the world's military budgets grew by 50 per cent in the first nine years of this century. Rather than continue that growth in weaponry, she said, the generals should invest in preventative budgets to "avoid the climate chaos that would demand a defence response that makes even today's spending burden look light."

Scientists and defence think-tanks have warned for years of the heightened military risks created by global warming. In 2007, the UN panel of climate scientists said hundreds of millions of Africans will face persistent drought and food insecurity over the next decades that could prompt many to abandon ancestral homes.

Michael Fassbender magnetizes as Magneto

New Magneto hopeful X-Men fans will be happy with this installment

Michael Fassbender's fame has had a slow-build over the last few years — appearing in 300 and Inglorious Bastards in addition to a few artsy, well-respected movies.

Metro caught Fassbender on the set of his next movie, a new adaptation of Jane Eyre.

How much will this X-Men go into your character Magneto's past?

You will see a little bit of that, yeah, at the beginning, but I thought what was interesting was what happened to him after the war — he gets that young gypsy girl out of the concentration camp that he falls in love with. They take off together and have a baby and the mob ends up going crazy and burning down the house and the child dies in the blaze. Magneto goes ape s— and kills everybody. She's freaked out and leaves him. So by the time we get to him in the movie, he's a bit of a loner, really.

Can you talk a little bit about the changes we see Magneto go through in the film?

Luther King Jr. and Malcolm X — Charles [Professor X] being Martin Luther and Erik [Magneto] being Malcolm X — these two ideals, two intelligent guys but with different methods of achieving what they want.

Erik doesn't trust humans and thinks they need to be wiped away and I can kind of see his point. It's like Homo Sapiens, Neanderthals, or what have you It's like it's the next stage of evolution. And humans have made a bit of balls of it. We have, haven't we?

Brooding Roles

Idol judges fill Simon's shoes

• Prove they can be just as blunt as Cowell • After 10 years, show still prompts plenty of passion

If the American Idol formula of past seasons holds true, the show's emotional temperature is about to skyrocket as Hollywood Week auditions begin airing today.

It's one thing for contestants to be rejected in the nationwide tryouts before the celebrity judges have lifted them out of the crowd. It's another when, hopes raised and dreams in hand, they travel to Los Angeles and discover their gold ticket is a one-way pass to rejection.

The Hollywood Week auditions — which were taped recently in decidedly suburban Pasadena — whittled a field of 300-plus singers to 60 semifinalists. As contestants showed, the fervour to win American Idol still burns strong in the show's 10th year.

After one woman sang her heart out and was rejected, she begged the judges to consider.

They refused. She left the stage and fell to her knees in the theatre aisle, weeping.
A camera followed closely to capture intimate footage of her despair, suitable for framing — or at least providing a few gripping on-air seconds as the Hollywood auditions air through this week and next Wednesday.

Former judge Simon Cowell can't be blamed for such meltdowns anymore. The reformulated panel of Jennifer Lopez, Steven Tyler and Randy Jackson proved they didn't need Cowell's scorched-earth policy to swiftly, and sometimes bluntly, cut the big field down to size.

"You took a good pop song and you beat it to death," Aerosmith frontman Tyler told four contestants who had joined for the group-performance segment at a Pasadena auditorium

Lopez scolded a female foursome, saying, "We expected so much from you," before Tyler sent them all packing.

Flav, whose real name is William Drayton Jr., grew up in Freeport, N.Y. He says he dropped out of school in 10th grade.

He opened Flav's Fried Chicken in Clinton, Iowa last month — his only connection to the Mississippi River town.

Last week the 51-year-

Martin Henderson goes Off the Map in Hawaii

• He may have to argue to keep his shirt on, but he can keep his accent in the new series Off the Map

New Zealand native Martin Henderson knew going in to starring in Off the Map, the latest series from Grey's Anatomy creator Shonda Rhimes, that he ran the risk of losing his shirt more often than not, but that didn't dissuade him from taking the gig. Henderson spoke with Metro about working in Hawaii, keeping his accent and arguing for more wardrobe.

How has shooting in Hawaii been?

I feel very blessed to be there. Who knows for how long? Hawaii offers for me a very unique balance between what I'm used to in New Zealand. It's America but with the Hawaiian culture and Hawaiian people, very similar to the Maori, and there's a lot of their sensibility and their spirit. I felt very at home there instantly. So I'm really happy. I'm learning to surf, which is the coolest thing and I recommend to everybody. I love it.

The show starts with the words, "Somewhere in South America." Why not choose a specific country?

I don't know the answer to that question. I don't know why they chose to make it generic. I initially thought it was in Peru only because there's ocean there and jungle. So it was coastal, and I figured maybe that was where they had set it. But the reason for keeping it general, I don't know.

Going into a Shonda Rhimes show, are you at all worried about how often you'll have to go without a shirt?

If you're a man, yeah. There's that element. To be honest, there's been one or two times where it's been suggested that maybe I would be shirtless in the scene, and I've managed to convince them through reasoning that that would not be logical. I think as long as the circumstances warrant it, then I think it's not gratuitous. I may lose that fight, though, every now and again.

With the increase of American shows shooting in Hawaii, is Hawaii becoming the new Canada?

If there was jungle in Canada, I bet we would be there. And I'm really glad there's no jungle in Canada. No offense to Canadians, but I'm very happy being in Hawaii.

There was talk of some other places they were doing budgets for and looking up in the lead-up to shooting, but Hawaii presented the best backdrop, and I think it's so naturally beautiful, almost as beautiful as New Zealand. And I did suggest we shoot it in New Zealand, quite seriously.

Were you excited that you got to keep your accent for the show?

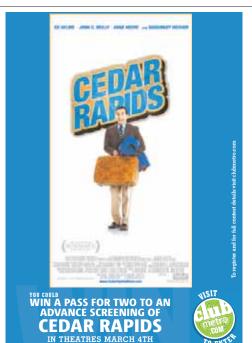

I was. When I first met Shonda about the show, she said it would be shooting in Hawaii, which sounded good, but I really thought I wanted to be here in L.A. where my home was. Then she said, "You get to keep your own accent" I thought that was a done deal. She meant it, but I think the network wasn't so sure that a total New Zealand accent would work, just from being able to under-

So they did ask you to articulate?

Yeah. I pretty much talk in the show how I do in real life, which is quite American. In New Zealand, people think I've got an American accent, and in America, people think I've got a New Zealand accent, it's kind of a bit of both Jennifer Aniston isn't obsessed with her age, but she is bothered by other people's obsession with it. "All of a sudden you're labeled, you're a number," she tells Rachael Ray about being over 40. "It wasn't like 30-plus or 30-something. It's just that all of a sudden it's like, 'Wow for your age, not so bad." Aniston admits the focus on being over 40 hurts "a little bit" because "all of a sudden they're making it sound like life is coming very shortly to an end," she says. "It's weird."

While she's turned heads in Hollywood for her portrayal of a free-spirited ballerina in Black Swan, Mila Kunis says she'll probably never dance again after making the film. "I have two scars on my back. And it was worth every minute. But I will never dance again.'

New Orleans looks to return to its former glory with a later than normal Mardi Gras season ◆ Students are expected to descend on city and boost tourist numbers that have been down since Hurricane Katrina di Gras in New Orleans.

Alexa Von Staden and her fiancée had just one thought when it came to spring break this year: Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

"We figured it was now or never," said Von Staden, who recently completed her master's at the University of Florida. "Because Mardi Gras is so late this year that it matches up with spring break. Who knows when that will happen again?"

Mardi Gras is March 8. The next time it will be this late is in 2038, when it falls on March 9.

New Orleans tourism officials, who have begun an advertising campaign to attract younger visitors, believe the happy convergence will give them a boost over Mardi Gras 2010, which was the biggest since hurricane Katrina hit in 2005.

A study done for the New Orleans Convention and Visitors Bureau said the city was not getting its share of 18- to 34-year-old visitors, despite its reputation as a party town. New advertising campaigns are being geared to that demographic, said bureau spokeswoman Kelly Schulz.

"I was kind of surprised by it," Schulz said. "We are family friendly, but we also think people should see more of our night life."

The campaign, with the theme "New Orleans, you're different here," puts further emphasis on the city's food, music and night life.

At Mardi Gras, the party

"All I know is we'll be cleaning up a lot of beads and drink cups all Mardi Gras long." EARL BERNHARDT, OWNER OF FIVE FRENCH QUARTER BARS takes to the streets, packing the parade routes in many areas, and turning Bourbon Street into a raucous, X-rated celebration for the young and free-spirited.

Certainly those in the hospitality business are expecting a nice bump, even above last Mardi Gras when the New Orleans Saints' Super Bowl victory was helping to draw people to the city.

"This year we are about 30 to 35 per cent ahead of the pace compared to last year and we had a very good year last year," said Gil Zanchi, general manager for the New Orleans Marriott and the five other Marriott hotels in the city.

Students looking for spring break adventures can't be credited for all the boost in room bookings, said Diana K. Schwam, who wrote the Frommer's New Orleans guide book.

"A lot of them stay with family or friends, or they crash 40 to a room, you remember those days," she said.

Mardi Gras has a lot of cachet for college students, but the later date will draw other celebrants as well, assuring visitors of good weather. And because it falls more than two months after Christmas, "people have paid off some of those bills and have more money to spend," Schwam said.

"I think New Orleans will get some spring breakers, certainly," said Bill Miller, a senior vice president of CheapOair. "But with the millions of kids who head out for that period, there won't be a substantial swing from Cancun," the Mexican beach resort that remains the No. 1 international destination for spring break.

College students who show up on Bourbon Street can look forward to round-the-clock partying, according to Earl Bernhardt, owner of five French Quarter bars, including one that sports the biggest balcony on Bourbon Street.

Hiking the Hollywood Hills

Deauty in Los Angeles isn't restricted to the stars Hollywood has plenty of natural wonders for visitors to see

You can see the stars all dressed up on the red car-pet at the Oscars. But if you want to see them in their sweats, head to the Hollywood Hills — from Runyon Canyon to the west, to Bronson Canvon in Griffith Park, with its 85 kilometres of paths, to the Jennifer Aniston, Sheryl Crow and other celebrities have been spotted on some of the trails, particularly in Runyon, but regular, nature-loving folks flock to the trails on a regular basis as well.

And while the rest of the country suffers through snow, sleet and freezing winter weather, Los Angeles offers bright year-round, so the hills that stretch and swerve away from the city's concrete, cars and grime can be explored during any season.

Runyon Canyon Park:

The Los Angeles Department of Recreation and Parks designated 36 of the 65 hectares off-leash for dogs, says Kevin Regan, the department's assistant general manager, and the area is now enormously popular among dog-lovers - including celebrities like Jessica Biel, who was photographed hiking its fivekilometre round-trip loop with her two pooches.

The top peak boasts vast views of Hollywood, including Capitol the Records building to the east, below. "You can experience a getaway that's close to home," says Regan. "That's the allure of any great urban park, that you leave the hustle and bustle of the city to get centred again before you go back."

Griffith Observatory:

It's a roughly four-kilometre round-trip trek to the Griffith Observatory, the 75-year-old domed L.A. landmark perched on the hillside of Griffith Park, and back from the base of the trail in the Fern Dell picnic area located off Fern Dell Drive, in the neighbourhood of Los Feliz, just east of Hollywood.

Hiking in Griffith means seeing more animals than any Angeleno is used to. This includes coyotes, rabbits, gophers, squirrels, deer and the occasional French bulldog. "Don't feed them. The coyote is interested in observing you and will mostly not invade your space," says Albert Torres, a park ranger.

The observatory appears in Rebel Without a Cause. A bust of actor James Dean is located on the observatory grounds.

Bronson Canyon and the Hollywood Sign

On the southwestern flank of Griffith Park, Bronson Canyon is best known for famous "Batcave," where the Batman television series used to film in the '60s, and opens up into gorgeous hikes near the Hollywood sign.

To see the short hillside tunnel, drive north up Avenue, Bronson Franklin Avenue, until it curves into Canvon Drive and ends at a dirt trail and parking lot. Hike above the lot, take a quick right and go up about half a kilometre. Hiking straight from the lot leads to a snaking path to the Hollywood sign. The immediate area surrounding the sign is restricted and monitored by surveillance cameras and motion detectors. Any hiker needs to be aware of high temperatures, especially in L.A., so pack water.

A shorter five-kilometre round-trip hiking path to and from the Hollywood sign starts in the hills of nearby Beachwood Canyon. You'll end up above the sign, able to see the large, looming letters from behind, plus a sweeping view of L.A., from sparkling Lake Hollywood to the west to the Griffith Observatory to the east.

Help your kids learn to read

Researchers have found several factors that can help children develop reading skills Dut it's important that children read things they enjoy

The foundation of lan-guage and literacy skills is laid during early childhood, so early learning is important to lifelong development.

Researchers have identified some of the most important factors that help children learn to read. But it is also vital that children read things they enjoy, and enjoy what they read.

Phonemic awareness: Helps the child to hear, identify and manipulate individual sounds phonemes) into words (for example, |g| = get).

- Fluency instruction: Reading accurately and quickly can be assisted by modeling fluency (reading aloud to children), providing books at the child's level, repeated oral reading. increasing practice through audiotapes, tutors and peer guidance.
- Vocabulary: Ways to teach vocabulary include teaching specific words before reading, providing activities involving those words (mental images or acting out definitions), and repeating vocabulary in different contexts.
- Text comprehension: Strategies to help children understand what they are reading include reading comprehension questions, understanding the story structure, summarizing, reflecting on prior knowledge to make connections, and using graphic organizers (such as bubble charts).
- Motivation: Children are motivated to read if they find the text interesting and have background knowledge on the topic. Children are often drawn to illustrations, graphics and display features.

JUMPING SHIP? CONSIDER THIS FIRST

hinking of jumping ship to the competition? Or dreaming of developing a rival firm? You'd better think twice before taking your clients with you.

Having made the decision to jump to a competitor, Paul Brownlee thought he could solicit his old clients to join him. But his former employer, Phoenix Restorations Ltd., felt otherwise.

Brownlee had signed three employment contracts with Phoenix providing that, for two years after his departure, he would not compete with the company or solicit its clients.

Despite the contracts, once Brownlee left Phoenix he visited two of its major clients on behalf of his new employer in an effort to solicit them. After learning of this,

Phoenix applied for an interim court order seeking to prohibit Brownlee from working for a competitor and from soliciting Phoenix's customers.

In assessing whether to uphold a contract limiting post-employment competition, a court must first determine if that agreement is reasonable and fair

According to the B.C. judge who recently heard this case, Phoenix's contracts with Brownlee were unenforceable. The contractual clauses limiting competition and solicitation were too broad and captured business that Phoenix did not compete for. In the court's view, placing such restraints on Brownlee was unfair.

This case demonstrates how far Canadian courts may go to overturn what is perceived to be an unfair limit on competition.

The key is often whether or not a contract will be upheld. Upon departing, employees should consider the following:

- Does your contract limit solicitation and/or competition? Such clauses are commonplace in today's employment contracts and are increasingly being enforced.
- In addition to contractual obligations, all employees have implied duties of good faith and fidelity toward their employers, which prohibit taking confidential client information to use in competition against a former employer.
- Employees entrusted with control over the business or even key aspects of it may be viewed as fiduciaries who are required to act in the company's best interest long after their departure.

A lunch bag makeover

Are you bored with packing the same lunch for your family every day? This time of year many children are in need of a lunch bag makeover to give them the energy they need to get through the afternoon.

Alter the shape

Whether it's cutting an orange into easy-to-eat bitesized pieces, slicing up a mundane apple to mimic a beautiful fan or simply cutting a sandwich into three pieces instead of two, changing the appearance of your child's food will spark their interest.

Make over your sandwich

Transform your ordinary sandwich into an impressive entrée. Leave the bread at home and stuff your sandwich fixings into a pita, roll them into a wrap, or toss them over a bed of lettuce. Stimulate your child's creativity by simply packing ingredients and letting your child assemble his/her own lunch.

Introduce something new

Once a week surprise your child with a new fruit or vegetable and at the end of the day have a family discussion about what everyone thought of this unfamiliar product.

GMs work phones as deadline nears

No shortage of teams looking to deal to shore up rosters for playoffs

With one eye on the standings and another on the calendar, NHL general managers are getting down to work.

The trade market picked up a full two weeks before the Feb. 28 deadline as GMs got an early start on trying to improve their teams. Outside of the deadline, inseason trades have virtually been eliminated in the NHL's salary cap era — at least until recently.

"The deals are happening a little earlier this year, which I think is a good thing," Hurricanes GM Jim Rutherford said yesterday.

"It makes sense for teams to get their players in and get them accustomed to their new teams. These deals will probably keep happening right through to the 28th now."

A couple major deals got done early last season llya Kovalchuk to New Jersey, Dion Phaneuf and J.S. Giguere to Toronto — but those transactions stood Trades both big and small are being made now and seem to be driven by a combination of factors.

Tight playoff races — particularly in the Western

"I know from talking to a couple other GMs that our trade set off a big surge in phone activity."

Conference, where third and 13th are separated by 10 points — are playing a part, as is the experience of years past.

Some managers have become wary of the frantic action that can be seen annually in the final hours of the trading period.

"It just gets confused, it's like a cattle stampede at the deadline," Maple Leafs GM Brian Burke told reporters in Boston yesterday. "You're in your war room and you're on one line, the assistant GM's on another line, the third guy's on another line, and you're trying to sort things out."

The Hurricanes sit eighth in the Eastern Conference and Rutherford expects the race to go right down to the wire. He's currently sitting on a move that would give him more flexibility.

"We'll consider making a deal here in the next few days that may position us better to do something closer to the deadline," said Rutherford. "There are teams inquiring about some of our players, which is pretty natural at this time" Pressure is mounting in cities like Boston and Los Angeles, where GMs Peter Chiarelli and Dean Lombardi have made no secret of their desire to add a player or two.

FLAMES' SUCCESS NOT ALL GOOD FOR FEASTER

Calgary's recent success is giving Jay Feaster a big headache. But it's a pain the acting GM is more than happy to deal with. ot only are the Flames winning and taking themselves out of the category of being sellers at the NHL trading deadline Feb. 28, they're doing so with an offensive style that is boosting the bargaining power of their key free agents.

Curtis Glencross, Alex Tanguay, Brendan Morrison and Anton Babchuk have been four of Calgary's hottest producers during this second-half surge.

They're all unrestricted free agents the Flames would love to have back next season if they can play this well for extended stretches. Add injured defenceman Adam Pardy to the list as well.

Feaster has experience dealing with inflating contract demands in a salary-cap world. As GM of the Tampa Bay Lightning, he had to pick and choose who to keep and who to move after the team won the Stanley Cup in 2004. He'd love the opportunity to try it again in Calgary because that would mean the Flames have taken the word "acting" away from his title.

Here's the problem, though: The Flames already have a payroll of $54 million next season and just $5.5 million to work with. Tanguay signed for the redemptive discount price of $1.7 million this season and will surely command north of $3 million thanks to a prorated 21 goals and 60 points. Glencross is making $1.2 million Glencross is making $1.2 million after a slow start is now among the top-30 goal-scorers in the NHL with 19 through 56 games. He'll be testing the free-agency waters for sure with an eye towards $3 million.

Morrison will be an interesting conundrum for Feaster. He's working well with Jarome Iginla, but will be 36 in August.

He's worth way more than the bargain price of $725,000 he signed for this season. But what kind of term do you offer?

Babchuk has been the offensive catalyst the Flames were hoping Jay Bouwmeester would be. Although there are some holes in Babchuk's defensive game, he does rank among the top-30 defencemen scorers in the NHL.
He's making $1.4 million and will surely get north of $2 million come July.
With more than $18 million tied up

With more than $18 million tied up among their top four D-men, the Flames can't afford another big salary in the No. 5 spot. Signing Pardy and adding a rookie is the cheaper option.

The better these UFAs do down the stretch, the bigger the headache Feaster will have in the summer.

Flames preview

Stars at Flames 7:30 p.m. TV: TSN Radio: FAN 960

Dallas (31-19-6) heads into Calgary during a tough month. The Stars had won just once in six games prior to their game yesterday against Edmonton. The last time the Stars visited Calgary they were shelled 7-4.

The Flames (29-22-8) are coming off a 9-1 rout of Colorado. Calgary has won nine of its last 12 games to shoot back up the Western Conference standings.

Visually, the G25's appearance is virtually identical to that of the G37, and that's a good thing. But where they part company, of course, is the powertrain. The G37 has a 328-horsepower 3.7-litre V6, while the G25 makes do with a 218-horsepower 2.5-litre V6.

Given the fact that the G25 has 30 per

Given the fact that the G25 has 30 per cent less power than the G37 and is only slightly lighter, a more modest rate of acceleration is definitely in the cards.

Entry-premium

The G-series, with its rear- and all-wheel-drive architecture, was originally created to challenge the likes of BMW's 3 series, the Audi A4 and the Mercedes-Benz C-class sedans.

Since its 2003-model-year launch, the highly regarded "G" has helped establish Infiniti as a serious rival in the entry-premium category.

Speaking performance

The subtly flared fenders that contain the G25's standard 17-inch alloy wheels offer some clue that this sedan speaks the language of performance.

One advantage of not downsizing to create an entry model is that you get a roomy, comfortable car to drive with plenty of luxury-grade amenities.

In case you are concerned that the G25 is a seriously decontented ride, it arrives with standard leather-covered seats, climate control, aluminum rim, remote keyless start and a six-speaker audio system with satellite radio capability.

Portal to privilege-class driving

Just about every luxury automaker is downsizing to stay relevant in a time when bottom line and fuel prices are high on shoppers' lists.

That means new small cars packed with features and smaller engines to keep governments and socially conscious buyers happy.

Infiniti is doing something radically different ... by keeping things the same ... sort of.

By adding a new G25 with a smaller engine and smaller loan payment than the G37, Infiniti doesn't really need to go back to the drawing board for a new small design.

Some might argue that dropping the price by about $4,000 and cutting out 110 horsepower reduces some of the car's cachet.

After all, with a $38,300 base price, which includes destination charges, the G25 is about $3,000 less than the top-of-the-line V6-powered Maxima sedan that's sold by Infiniti's Nissan parent.

However, the Japanbased automaker is clearly more interested in spreading the G-series gospel to a wider audience of potential customers than worrying about any possible erosion or crossover in Maxima sales.

Infiniti is obviously banking on a brace of buyers seeking the look and feel of a luxury sedan, but who are willing to sacrifice a degree of performance to save big bucks when signing on the dotted line. If that seems like a fair tradeoff, then the G25 might just be your portal to privilege-class driving.

A seven-speed automatic transmission will keep the G25's 2.5-litre V6 in its ideal rev range, which improves acceleration and fuel economy. The difference between the G25 and G37 is about $350 per year, if comparing fuel ratings.

The Hyundai Tucson built its reputation on valuepriced flexibility, capability and sensibility.

Available to Canadian shoppers from 2005 to 2009, the last generation of this machine competed with the likes of the Honda CR-V, Toyota RAV4 and Ford Escape.

It was available with two or four-wheel drive and four or six-cylinder power to fit a variety of needs and budgets. Affordable pricing was, arguably, key to this machine's success.

Four-wheel drive models came almost exclusively with the automatic transmission — though a rare four-cylinder, four-wheel drive model with manual transmission was available
